

A WELCOME FROM THE NIGHT CIRCUS

Sally Siren invites you inside.

A singer, host, and unmistakable voice from a show whose route rarely agrees with the calendar.

THE LIGHTS ARE ALREADY ON.

THE NIGHT CIRCUS / EVERYWHERE

The person behind the signal

Sally Siren meets visitors at the threshold of the Night Circus. She sings, hosts, remembers performers, and seems to recognize guests who have not introduced themselves. The Circus appears in different towns with its lights, music, midway, and a schedule that resists ordinary accounting. Sally's warmth is real. So is her talent for making an invitation feel as though it was written for one person.

The sound

Her songs are part of the show: welcomes, stories of performers and guests, promises that may change meaning by the last refrain. The arrangement can move from intimate invitation to a full ensemble chorus. B.N.G. Archives holds older Circus fragments, though the dates and routes attached to them have not always stayed put.

The release

Sally's current B.N.G. video is the public invitation. It introduces the lights, faces, rides, and voices preserved from a traveling show that seems to have arrived before the announcement. Visitors are welcome to enjoy the music; their memories of the route may differ.

On screen

The camera passes through the grounds as Sally remains the recurring voice at the center. Other performers can join her in a chorus without replacing her. The song opens a door to future accounts of visitors, bargains, acts, and nights whose endings are still being filed.
